

Exemptions and Legal Resources Against Vax Mandates

You can seek two exemptions as an employee: Medical or Religious.

We encourage you to question your employer using the following document first.

<https://www.coreysdigs.com/solutions/>

You can also ask your employer to sign the “Assumption of Liability” from <https://defendingtherepublic.org/>.

Legal Rights in Texas: <https://www.texansforvaccinechoice.com/> click on “Resources.”

Medical Exemptions:

The medical exemption is one you get from your doctor because you have an allergy to an ingredient in the vaccines or you have a history of reacting to vaccines. This exemption is supported by the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA).

Religious Exemptions:

The religious exemption is for anyone who does not believe in this vaccine. You can verbally claim this exemption. If your school or employer wants paperwork, please visit the following sites for specifics on documentation. The Healthy American group will complete your paperwork for you for a small fee. This exemption is supported by the Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.*

<https://www.thehealthyamerican.org/> Click on “Employee Rights.”

<https://defendingtherepublic.org/> Click on “COVID.”

*California, Maine, Mississippi, New York and West Virginia only accept Medical Exemptions.

Suing an Employer: Go to <https://americasfrontlinedoctors.org/> and click on “Legal.” Then click on “Vaccines and the Law.”

Suing a College or School: Go to <https://childrenshealthdefense.org/legal/legal-resources/> to access sample letters to submit to your school.

Contact a Lawyer: Paul M. Davis & Associates, P.C.

5720 Frisco Square Blvd., #2066

Frisco, TX 75034

469-850-2930, paul@fireduptxlawyer.com

We hope you found this information helpful. You can follow us at:

<https://peopleagainstoercedvaccines.shutterfly.com>

Facebook group: PACS

Clouhub group: Vaccine Choice

peopleagainstoercedshots@yahoo.com